3. primary source material, such as composers’ publications on music
4. biographical profiles of composers and performers
5. appropriate and inappropriate ways to write about music
6. the process for writing a musical analysis: from outline to final draft
7. the differences between writing a music research paper and writing an analysis

B) Skill Outcomes

Students will be able to:
1. aurally identify the music by genre, style and composer.
2. identify, at sight, the genre and composer of musical scores.
3. construct chronologies, in the form of time-lines, that place musical developments in context with world events.
4. prepare and write an in-depth musical analysis.
5. demonstrate mastery of new concepts and vocabulary.
6. improve writing and editing ability.
7. prepare for essay examinations.

C) Values Outcomes (optional)

Students will:
1. gain historical perspective.
2. understand how musical style from Europe and America changed across time.
3. understand how the role of music and musicians in European and American societies changed across time.
4. have a meaningful appreciation of the musical contributions from Europe and America.
5. understand the special challenges of writing a musical analysis.
V. Unless otherwise stipulated in the master syllabus by the department, the following items are subject to faculty discretion as described in each faculty member’s individual course outline/syllabus:

   a) Course Requirements
   b) Required Text(s)
   c) Bibliography

VI. Academic Honesty: Cheating, plagiarism (submitting another person’s materials or ideas as one’s own), or doing work for another person who will receive academic credit are all-impermissible. This includes the use of unauthorized books, notebooks, or other sources in order to secure or give help during an examination, the unauthorized copying of examinations, assignments, reports, or term papers, or the presentation of unacknowledged material as if it were the student’s own work. Disciplinary action may be taken beyond the academic discipline administered by the faculty member who teaches the course in which the cheating took place.

VII. Students With Disabilities Policy: It is the policy of Tarleton State University to comply with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) and other federal, state, and local laws relative to the provision of disability services. Students with disabilities attending Tarleton State University may contact the Office of Disability Services at (254) 968-9478 to request appropriate accommodation. Furthermore, formal accommodation requests cannot be made until the student has been officially admitted to Tarleton State University.
