Agenda Item 9: Dept. of English and Languages

Dr. McPherson presented, Dr. Stafford moved to approve, Dr. Morgan seconded, item was approved.

Department	Program/Course	Change Request	Item No.	Effective Term
English and Languages	ENGL 5316	Since the expansion of the canon, there has been increasing demand for courses that focus on alternative narratives in American literature. ENGL 5316 addresses this demand while expanding our course offerings in American literature. The Department of English and Languages now has at least two professors whose expertise includes African-American literature.	C3913	Fall 2020
English and Languages	ENGL 5318	This course fills a gap in our literature offerings by providing focused study on women writers. Several of our faculty have expertise to teach this course.	C3914	Fall 2020
English and Languages	ENGL 5339	This topic has been offered on a regular rotation in ENGL 5330 Studies in Rhetoric, a variable topics course. As its own stand-alone course, Studies in Disability Rhetoric will add depth to our rhetoric courses and provide an opportunity for students to focus in an important area in rhetoric studies.	C3912	Fall 2020
English and Languages	ENGL 5317	This course expands our department's graduate level course offerings. This course may also work to fill an elective credit from majors outside of English.	C4013	Fall 2020
English and Languages	ENGL 5328	This course further brings our course offerings in technical communication in line with similar technical communication programs.	C4015	Fall 2020
English and Languages	ENGL 5315	This course expands our course offerings at graduate level. This may also work to fill an elective credit from other majors outside of English.	C4014	Fall 2020
English and Languages	ENGL 5319	We have frequently offered this course as a special topics course; it has become a standard part of our curriculum. As such, we want to add it to our official course inventory.	C4016	Fall 2020

Agenda Item 10: Dept. of History, Sociology & Geography

Dr. Cruz and Dr. Morgan presented, Dr. Morgan moved to approve, Dr. Eichenberg seconded, item was approved.

Agenda Item 11: Dept. of Chemistry, Geoscience & Physics

Dr. Morgan presented, Dr. Eichenberg moved to approve, Dr. Westbrook seconded, item was approved.

Department	Program/Course	Change Request	Item No.	Effective Term
Chemistry, Geoscience & Physics	ENVS-MS - ENVS-MS: Master of Science in Environmental Science	Adjusting program to allow for online and hybrid offering. Added ENVS 5370 (corrected, see course description) as option for ENVS MS students, as other options are in-person only. Added GEOG as option for electives (i.e., GEOG 5086 can be taken for credit without department substitution in program).	P93	Fall 2020
Chemistry, Geoscience & Physics	ENVS 5370	Current ENVS MS program relies on methodologies taught by other departments and disciplines, and lack a multidisciplinary approach.	C3939	Fall 2020
