Did you know? Using identical terms in Google searches can yield different results based on multiple Google search personalization factors that include your location (city, state, country); the computer used (IP identification); your search history, web sites viewed, your Google accounts (and your demographic data), if companies pay to be in specific search results, and many more. Updated January 2018