

My research & teaching interests include the application of ecological science toward real-world problems involving conservation of species, sustainable use of resources, land degradation, climate change, and ecosystem management. I am advisor to the plant ID team and Prescribed Burn Society at Tarleton. I welcome undergraduate & graduate research projects.